This season's must haves

Fantastic
fuchsias

Ideal for summer containers and hanging baskets in sun or part-shade, trailing and bush varieties of Bella Fuchsias can be mixed and matched to suit your seasonal colour scheme.

H: 20cm 🌸 Jun-Oct

Smart swap

If you need a reliable alternative to Box (Buxus), an excellent choice for topiary and low hedging (up to 1m) is Ilex crenata 'Jenny'. This glossy, smooth-leaved Japanese holly is slow-growing and easy to clip, and it grows well in sun or part-shade.

Raising funds for Perennial

This summer, we'll be raising money for the gardening charity, Perennial. If you buy any of these four beautiful plants – Clematis 'Prince George' (1), Dianthus 'Pink Celebration' (2), Nemesia 'Peaches & Cream' (3) or Salvia 'Cuello Pink' (4) – a proportion of the price will be given to Perennial, to support people who have worked in horticulture. You can find more about the charity's work at perennial.org.uk

Fabulous foliage

Two recent dwarf varieties of weigela offer pretty leaf colour, lots of flowers and a compact size. Choose from Weigela 'Camouflage' (H: 60cm) with its purple-bronze variegated leaves, or Weigela Prism 'Magic Carpet' (H: 60cm). 🌸 May-Jun

Just desserts

These sweet shades of pink, peach and pomegranate-red look good enough to eat. Dahlias make great 'thriller' plants for a large container, while Begonias, Fuchsias and Osteospermums are all generous fillers with non-stop flowers.

Sing the blues

Define the drama of deep blue and indigo with contrasting pops of orange and yellow. Make Agapanthus or Delphinium the star of the show, then add 'filler' clouds of daisy flowers and scrambling 'spillers' like Calibrachoa and Petunia.

Very berry

Bold berry tones of raspberry-pink, cherry-red and blackcurrant make a mouthwatering combination – from 'wow' plants, like Delphinium and Hydrangea, to free-flowering 'fillers', such as bedding Dahlia and Geranium.

Try this

With summer containers, plant more densely than usual for added impact. Using peat-free compost, position your 'thriller' plant in the middle, then tuck 'fillers' and 'spillers' around the edges of the pot.

Delphinium Delgenius 'Breezin' H: 60cm 🌸

Geranium 'Boom'

Dahlia 'Starburst Pink' H: 45cm 🌸

Fuchsia 'Delta Sarah'

Ice queens

Calm it down with cool pastels, from pearly white to shell pink. A variety of flower shapes keep this colour scheme dynamic – including the bold 'thriller' spheres of Agapanthus or Allium, and the dainty bell-shaped blooms of 'filler' plants like Salvia and Fuchsia.

There's a clematis flower for every season but the real eye-catchers are the summer-flowering varieties, with their starry blooms and sumptuous colours. Some can be grown in patio containers, while others will soon romp up a fence. Many of the clematis we've selected here are heritage varieties that can be trusted to perform well year after year. They all flower solidly for at least two months, and some then produce a second flush of blooms in late summer.

Rising stars

Nothing brings colour to fences and obelisks like a clematis. Here are some lovely heritage cultivars, and two new varieties bred by clematis expert Raymond Evison CBE

Top tips

Most clematis prefer light sun or part-shade, and they all enjoy cool, shady roots. Plant a few flowering perennials (like hardy geraniums) around the base, and let the leaves shade the clematis roots.

Water well after planting your clematis, and tie the delicate stems loosely onto a support.

Feed in spring and summer – sprinkle evenly around the plant's base and water in.

Sensory gardening

When you're choosing new plants for your outdoor space, why not consider how they might benefit your senses?

Plants can bring more than just colour or form to your garden – especially in summer. Many plants influence our wellbeing through the way we experience them – that might be the colour (calming pastels or uplifting brights) but it could also be the way the leaves feel, how the flowers smell, or the sound the stems make in the wind. Plants that attract pollinating insects can also engage our senses, through the sight and sound of the insects they bring. Here are some easy-to-grow plants that enhance the senses.

For maximum flower power, don't forget your walls and fences. Climbing plants and wall shrubs often take up very little space at ground level, but will provide weeks of wonderful summer flowers, and some are beautifully scented, too. The secret to success with climbers and wall shrubs is to give them some sturdy support, prune out branches you don't want, and carefully tie in the stems you want to keep. Here is a selection of our favourites.

Grow your own summer meals

Some summer recipes are always on-trend and, for budding GYO gardeners, these include many classic favourites that taste even better with freshly picked produce

Growing your own summer edibles doesn't require huge amounts of space or effort – you can grow cut-and-come-again salad leaves or strawberries in a large container or trough, and Mediterranean herbs are perfectly happy in a pot on your window-sill. For the best results, grow fruit and veg plants in a sunny spot, and water the soil or compost when it feels dry.

'Chocolate'

Strawberry
'Elsanta'

Strawberries 'n' cream

A tried and trusted strawberry variety such as 'Elsanta' gives you plenty of sweet, fragrant fruits – perfect for combining with whipped or pouring cream. To elevate the flavours, garnish with a sprinkle of finely chopped mint and a light drizzle of agave nectar.

Tomato salsa

'Tumbling' bush tomatoes are easy to grow in a pot or a hanging basket, and will produce lots of juicy fruits. For a simple salsa dip, finely chop ripe tomatoes, salad onions (or chives), and a handful of basil leaves.

Season with salt and pepper, add a dash of olive oil and mix well.

Greek salad

Conjure up the flavours of a Mediterranean odyssey with homegrown Greek salads. Tasty salad leaves, juicy cherry tomatoes and aromatic herbs can all be grown in the garden, then all you need to add is crumbly feta cheese, a handful of black olives, a squeeze of lemon juice and a drizzle of olive oil.

Edible garnishes

Jazz up summer cocktails and mocktails with pretty edible flowers like lavender, marigold and viola, or summer fruits – including raspberries, blueberries and strawberries. Sprigs of rosemary and mint also add a fragrant element to elderflower mocktails or gin-based cocktails.

'NOJITO' MOCKTAILS

Make your own delicious, alcohol-free version of a classic Mojito. For each serving, muddle a teaspoon of sugar with two or three stems of mint in a pestle and mortar. Add some crushed ice to a tall, highball-style glass. Juice half a lime (per serving) and pour the juice into the glass. Add the crushed sugar and mint mix, and fill with soda water, then serve with a sustainable straw (paper or bamboo), a slice of lime and fresh mint leaves. For a twist, replace the limes with raspberries.
